Healthcare is an important part of life, and it is important to understand how it is viewed in the Christian faith. This blog post will explore the accessibility of healthcare in Christianity, including how it is viewed in the Bible, how it is practiced in the church, and how it is used to serve the community.

The Bible has a lot to say about healthcare and how it should be used. In the book of James, it states, "Is any among you sick? Let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord" (James 5:14). This passage shows that the church should be involved in the care of the sick, and that prayer and anointing with oil are important parts of the healing process.

In the book of Proverbs, it states, “A wise man will hear and increase learning, and a man of understanding will attain wise counsel” (Proverbs 1:5). This passage shows that seeking wise counsel is important in healthcare, and that it is important to seek out advice from those who are knowledgeable in the field.

In the book of Isaiah, it states, “He gives power to the faint, and to him who has no might he increases strength” (Isaiah 40:29). This passage shows that God is the ultimate source of strength and power, and that He is the one who can provide healing and strength to those who are weak and in need of help.
