The Vietnamese Christian Revival of the 1990s to the present has been a remarkable period of growth and transformation for the Christian faith in Vietnam. It has been a time of great spiritual awakening and renewal, as well as a time of great challenge and persecution. This revival has been marked by a dramatic increase in the number of Christians in Vietnam, as well as a renewed commitment to the Christian faith among those who already professed it.

The roots of the Vietnamese Christian Revival can be traced back to the late 1980s, when the Communist government of Vietnam began to relax its restrictions on religious freedom. This allowed for the growth of the Christian faith in Vietnam, which had been largely suppressed during the previous decades of Communist rule. As the restrictions on religious freedom were lifted, the number of Christians in Vietnam began to grow rapidly.

At the same time, the 1990s saw a resurgence of the Christian faith in Vietnam, as many Vietnamese Christians began to rediscover their faith and to re-engage with the Church. This was a period of great spiritual renewal, as many Vietnamese Christians began to explore their faith and to deepen their relationship with God. This period of spiritual renewal was marked by a renewed commitment to the Christian faith, as well as a renewed commitment to evangelism and mission.
