The Azusa Street Revival was a powerful religious movement that took place in Los Angeles, California from 1906 to 1909. It was led by a group of key figures and leaders who were instrumental in spreading the message of Pentecostalism and the power of the Holy Spirit. These figures and leaders included William J. Seymour, Charles Parham, Florence Crawford, and Frank Bartleman.

William J. Seymour

William J. Seymour was the most influential leader of the Azusa Street Revival. He was born in Centerville, Louisiana in 1870 and was of African-American and French descent. He was a student of Charles Parham, a prominent leader of the Holiness Movement, and was exposed to the teachings of the Pentecostal movement. In 1906, Seymour moved to Los Angeles and began preaching at the Azusa Street Mission. He was a powerful preacher and was able to draw large crowds to the mission. He was also a strong advocate for racial equality and was able to bring together people of different races and backgrounds to worship together.

Charles Parham

Charles Parham was a prominent leader of the Holiness Movement and was a major influence on William J. Seymour. He was born in Muscatine, Iowa in 1873 and was a Methodist minister. He was a strong advocate for the power of the Holy Spirit and believed that speaking in tongues was a sign of the baptism of the Holy Spirit. He was also a strong advocate for racial equality and was able to bring together people of different races and backgrounds to worship together.

Florence Crawford

Florence Crawford was a prominent leader of the Azusa Street Revival. She was born in 1871 in Kansas and was of African-American and Native American descent. She was a student of Charles Parham and was exposed to the teachings of the Pentecostal movement. She was a powerful preacher and was able to draw large crowds to the Azusa Street Mission. She was also a strong advocate for racial equality and was able to bring together people of different races and backgrounds to worship together.

Frank Bartleman

Frank Bartleman was a prominent leader of the Azusa Street Revival. He was born in 1871 in Pennsylvania and was a Methodist minister. He was a strong advocate for the power of the Holy Spirit and believed that speaking in tongues was a sign of the baptism of the Holy Spirit. He was also a strong advocate for racial equality and was able to bring together people of different races and backgrounds to worship together.

These figures and leaders included William J. Seymour, Charles Parham, Florence Crawford, and Frank Bartleman. They were all strong advocates for racial equality and were able to bring together people of different races and backgrounds to worship together. As the Bible says in Acts 2:1-4, "When the day of Pentecost had come, they were all together in one place. And suddenly a sound came from heaven like the rush of a mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared to them tongues as of fire, distributed and resting on each one of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance."•

Salvation Prayers : Dear Lord Jesus, I come to you today acknowledging my need for salvation. I confess that I have sinned and fallen short of your glory. But I believe that you died for my sins and rose again. I ask that you come into my heart and be my Lord. I commit to following you and living for you every day. Thank you for your love and for the gift of eternal life. In your name I pray, Amen.
