Easter is a time of celebration and joy for many Christians around the world. It is a time to remember the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ and to celebrate the hope of eternal life. As such, Easter has become associated with a variety of traditions and symbols, many of which have been around for centuries. In this blog post, we will discuss the origins of some of these Easter traditions, such as the Easter egg and an Easter lily, and how they are connected to the Christian faith.

I. The Easter Egg

The Easter egg is one of the most recognizable symbols of Easter. It is believed that the tradition of decorating eggs for Easter dates back to the 13th century when it was a custom among Orthodox Christians to dye eggs red to represent the blood of Christ. The egg was also seen as a symbol of new life, as it was believed to represent the tomb from which Jesus rose. In the Bible, the book of Genesis states, “And God said, ‘Let the earth bring forth living creatures according to their kinds: cattle and creeping things and beasts of the earth according to their kinds.’ And it was so” (Genesis 1:24). This passage is often interpreted as a reference to the resurrection of Jesus, and the egg is seen as a symbol of this new life.

II. The Easter Lily

The Easter lily is another popular symbol of Easter. It is believed that the tradition of using lilies to decorate churches and homes during Easter dates back to the 4th century. The lily was seen as a symbol of purity and innocence and was often used to represent the Virgin Mary. In the Bible, the book of Luke states, "And Mary said, 'Behold, the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word'" (Luke 1:38). This passage is often interpreted as a reference to Mary's purity and innocence, and the lily is seen as a symbol of this.

III. Other Easter Traditions

In addition to the Easter egg and the Easter lily, there are a variety of other Easter traditions that have been around for centuries. For example, the tradition of giving Easter baskets filled with candy and other treats dates back to the 16th century. The tradition of the Easter bunny, which is believed to bring the Easter eggs, dates back to the 19th century. And the tradition of the Easter parade, which is a celebration of the resurrection of Jesus, dates back to the 19th century as well.
