The Bible presents a clear understanding of gender roles in marriage, which can help us navigate the complexities of this important relationship. The Bible teaches that husbands have a leadership role in the marriage, and wives have a supportive role. However, this does not mean that one gender is more important or superior to the other. Rather, both genders are equal in the eyes of God, and both have unique roles to play in a healthy marriage. In this post, we will explore what the Bible says about gender roles in marriage and answer some frequently asked questions on the topic.

What Does the Bible Say About Gender Roles in Marriage?

The Bible teaches that husbands are called to be the leaders in their marriages. Ephesians 5:23 states, “For the husband is the head of the wife as Christ is the head of the church, his body, of which he is the Savior.” This does not mean that husbands have the right to dominate their wives or treat them with disrespect. Rather, it means that husbands are called to love their wives sacrificially and to lead their families in a way that honors God.

At the same time, wives are called to be supportive of their husbands’ leadership. Ephesians 5:22 states, “Wives, submit yourselves to your own husbands as you do to the Lord.” This does not mean that wives are inferior to their husbands or that they must blindly follow their every command. Rather, it means that wives are called to respect and support their husbands’ leadership in the same way that they respect and follow God’s leadership.
